

About Therion

Therion is dedicated to using the power of biomagnetics to reduce pain and inflammation, and help you live a better life. We believe in working with consumers, doctors and therapists to find ways to help your body heal and brighten your days - without the harmful side effects associated with drugs.

Have you ever felt like your family is tired of hearing about your pain, or your physician is not taking your pain seriously? Do you feel like they just don't understand how much it affects you?

We understand.

It's not easy to talk about pain. It can leave you feeling burdensome, even isolated. But know that you're not alone.

According a Louis Harris and Associates pain survey, at least 1 in 5 Americans suffers from some form of chronic pain or inflammation. The majority does not have their pain under control and have lived with it for years. They've been to at least 3 different physicians and take an average of 4 different prescription medications. But the pain still remains.

Therion can help you

Therion's powerful magnetic therapy products:

- Effectively relieve pain without side effects
- Reduce inflammation faster than ice packs
- Increase joint flexibility
- Accelerate natural healing
- Improve sleep comfort

Our founder, Bruce P. Spiegler, has spent more than 14 years researching the effects of magnetic therapy on pain and inflammation. Over the years, he has discovered that magnetic therapy works significantly faster than supplements and often better, than drugs.

Therion's Five Year Development Process

Before we decided to start marketing Therion products, we needed to research what was already available to help ease pain and start the healing process. At first, we were a bit confused by the results we were getting from most of the existing magnetic therapy products.

Interviews with patients who were already using other magnetic therapy products showed that while 40% were helped, as many as 20% reported that their pain actually got worse. The rest felt no difference.

Over 12 years of research told us that something was wrong with those numbers. That's when we started looking closely at the products that people were actually using.

We were stunned.

Our investigation revealed that people were using products that contained magnets that were so weak they had no therapeutic value at all. Other people were using products that had their magnets installed backwards ? which has been proven to increase pain and inflammation.

We knew we could do better. We made sure that our biomagnets were made using only high-energy, research grade materials so they were strong enough to provide real therapeutic value. Then we developed new manufacturing methods and quality control procedures that ensured the proper positioning and correct installation of all biomagnets.

Finally, we engineered our products so that the specialized non-magnetic components, such as the support and cushioning materials, contributed to the therapeutic process and gave them the high level of comfort needed to obtain optimum therapeutic results.

Our development team spent years engineering products that would bring people the real relief that they were looking for. When we completed final testing, we knew that we had achieved our goal. Between 85 and 90% of people using Therion magnetic therapy products reported significant relief from their discomfort. That is more than double the positive rate reported by users of other magnetic products.
